What should I do when I experience technical issues?

First thing to know, do not contact your instructor. Your professor is a teacher and a mathematician – not tech support.

Generally, there are some basic troubleshooting tips that will help you determine what the problem might be and to correct that issue. You probably don't have to try all the tips below – they are listed in order of ease.

- Make sure you have a good connection. Even though some websites allow wireless connections to slightly fade in and out, Connect Math is transferring data that affects your score. It is important that the connection is solid. If you are experiencing an issue and you have the option of connecting via cable, please do so.
- Log out and close your browser. Open a new browser window and log in.
- Try another browser. If you are using Internet Explorer, try Mozilla Firefox.
- Try another computer.
- Clear your cache. This process is not difficult and only takes a couple of minutes; however, the procedure is different depending on the browser you are using.
- Did you forget your login or password? Click Forgot your login info? on the login page. Your login name and password will be sent immediately to the address you entered during registration.
